| Hi. Quick question for your advice: do you think it would be possible/ helpful to get a senior Government person to come out condemning strongly phone hacking, ask for thorough police investigation but insisting on the need for the legal process to be followed? Incredible that a business decision on a massive takeover could be left to Parliament to oppose/influence no? Hope all is well. Fred |                            |

| Hammond for example was useful today but I think if there is a need for a strong clear message from Government that Parliament should not be replacing the Takeover panel or Ofcom for Miliband political expediency, especially since Ofcom said, after clearing our UIL, that they were monitoring the situation. I know DC is not in a strong position but i think it would help. Let me know views. Fred |                            |
