A CONSUMER IMPACTS SENSITIVITY ANALYSIS

A.1 This section includes sensitivity analysis for our monetary estimates of quality improvements since 2005.

Monetising improvements in quality

A.2 Almost half of the care homes we surveyed reported that changes in their policies and procedures resulting directly from the OFT's market study had led to improvements in the quality of the service they provide to residents. We combine this information with data on changes in the quality of care homes and data on changes in average care home fees to derive a monetary estimate of these quality improvements since 2005.

A.3 Our approach suggests that the OFT's market study contributed to quality improvements which could be valued at approximately £30 million to £50 million since 2005, or around £6 million to £10 million annually.

Impact of adjusting fees and attribution

A.4 Table A.1 reproduces the analysis from our main evaluation report but includes additional sensitivity analysis based on variations in:

- the average care home fee per person per week ($F_{2005}$) and
- the proportion of quality changes attributable to the OFT's study (OFT).

A.5 The estimates from our evaluation report are represented as the 'medium' case scenario below and these are presented alongside two additional scenarios:

- a 'low' case scenario where the average care home fee per person per week ($F_{2005}$) is £400 and the proportion of quality changes attributable to the OFT's study (OFT) is 2.5 per cent, and
- a 'high' case scenario where the average care home fee per person per week ($F_{2005}$) is £550 and the proportion of quality changes attributable to the OFT's study (OFT) is 5.0 per cent.

Table A.1 shows the impact of varying the proxy financial value for care homes provision (the average care home fee in 2005) and the proportion of quality changes due to the OFT's study on our monetary estimate of this quality improvement. Specifically:

- under the 'low' scenario (where we assume that the average care home fee in 2005 was £400 instead of £482 and we also assume that the proportion of quality changes attributable to the OFT's study was 2.5 per cent instead of 3.7 per cent) the monetary value of the change in care homes quality falls from £33 million to £20 million (or from £6.6 million to £4.0 million on an annual basis), and

- under the 'high' scenario (where we assume that the average care home fee in 2005 was £550 instead of £482 and we also assume that the proportion of quality changes attributable to the OFT's study was 5.0 per cent instead of 3.7 per cent) the monetary value of the change in care homes quality rises from £33 million to £50 million (or from £6.6 million to £10.0 million on an annual basis).
B RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

B.1 This section presents a detailed overview of our method of approach for the primary research and fieldwork elements of our evaluation.

Overview

B.2 The fieldwork stage of our evaluation included four elements:

- consumer interviews and focus groups – GHK conducted a number of interviews and small focus groups with care home residents and their relatives both within the care home and in neutral settings to document consumer experiences in choosing a care home

- care homes survey – GHK used market research company, Swift Research Ltd., to complete a survey of 375 care homes1 across the United Kingdom to determine their practices in relation to information provision, pricing and complaints

- care homes mystery shopping exercise – Swift Research undertook a mystery shopping exercise with 376 care homes (primarily the same care homes surveyed under the above fieldwork option) to assess their practices and how this compares to the statements made in the care homes survey, and

- local authority survey – GHK sent a survey to every local authority (and Health Trust in Northern Ireland). This contained questions related to consumer choice and switching, information provision, top-up fees and complaints, among other things.

1 A sample size of 375 was chosen on the basis of a population of approximately 15,000 care homes in the UK. This sample size generated statistically representative results at a 95 per cent level of confidence with an error of margin of +/- five per cent.
Consumer interviews and focus groups

B.3 The research approach employed for this part of the study required us to consult directly with care home residents as well as identify potential routes into other groups which have a working knowledge of the issues facing residents of care homes. We began by contacting the following organisations to help us identify potential participants for our research:

- Age UK, which constituted the chief information source for local and regional older people’s forums in the UK

- Local Improvement Networks (LINks): these NHS organisations exist within each Primary Care Trust area and act as a conduit for service users to feedback on services and contribute to local policy making. Most LINiks have a strand of work which focuses on dignity in care. We aimed to speak to the lead in this area to gauge whether they have institutional links with local older people’s groups. A number of LINiks are hosted by local Age Concern organisations which we focused on in the early stages of set up

- local Age Concern offices

- a range of different carers' associations, and

- Local Voluntary Sector Councils (VSCs) which have links with local older people’s charities.

B.4 We approached a number of each of these types of organisations, explained the study and then asked them to opt in if they were interested in contributing. We did this at an early stage in order to focus attention on those most interested.

B.5 We were targeting two groups: residents of care homes themselves and their carers and relatives. Our fieldwork with these individuals involved the following:

- Face-to-face interviews with 19 residents of care homes in three residential care homes and one nursing home. Our visits to care homes lasted around two hours with the format for the visits defined by the Activities Coordinator within each home. These individuals also advised us on the residents most able and willing to contribute. Interviews took place either in the resident’s room or in a more open communal area (depending on the preference of the resident and advice of the Activities Coordinator). Interviews were conducted on either a one-to-one basis, or interviewing older residents in pairs, once again dependent on their preferences.

- Face-to-face (individual and group) and telephone interviews with 16 carers and relatives.

B.6 Carrying out qualitative research with care home residents and their representatives allowed us to capture the views of ‘consumers’ in a more direct and meaningful way than would otherwise be the case had we restricted our engagement to consumer bodies. This approach did not provide a statistically robust sample of consumers of the kind that would have enabled a comparison of data with the baseline derived from the 2005 OFT market study, but it provided us with additional data and evidence on the consumer experience.

Care homes survey

B.7 A telephone survey of a sample of care homes across the UK was undertaken to ascertain the policies and practices of care homes and the manner in which these have changed in response to the recommendations arising from the OFT’s market study.

B.8 We sampled 375 care homes which generated statistically representative results at a 95 per cent level of confidence with an error of margin of +/- five per cent.

B.9 We stratified our sample to ensure a representative population and enable direct comparison with the 2005 care home survey. This was based on five key quotas which were set at levels that reflected the representation of each in the care homes population. Our achieved sample had the following profile:
• location – 78 per cent of homes in England; 12 per cent in Scotland; 6 per cent in Wales; four per cent in Northern Ireland

• capacity – 24 per cent of homes with up to 20 places; 45 per cent with 21-40 places; 31 per cent with more than 40 places

• provider type – 79 per cent of homes were private; nine per cent Local Authority; 12 per cent other

• provider size – 90 per cent of homes were associated with providers that run up to three homes; 10 per cent involved four or more homes being owned/run, and

• care type – 63 per cent of homes were residential care homes; 37 per cent were nursing care homes.

B.10 The survey was conducted by Swift Research Ltd and involved a 20 minute telephone interview with care home managers across the UK.

B.11 GHK sourced lists of care homes from the care homes regulators in each jurisdiction. Swift Research then used a pre-prepared script when telephoning care homes for the survey.

Care homes mystery shopping exercise

B.12 A mystery shopping exercise was undertaken to gather evidence on the behaviour of care homes in relation to the provision of information to prospective care home residents and their representatives. This was designed largely to act as a check and balance on care home survey responses with respect to information provision to potential residents.

B.13 The sample for the mystery shopping exercise was largely the same as that used for the care homes survey. This was intended to allow us to test the responses of care homes to our survey with respect to information provision. However, a perfect match was not possible given that we decided not to mystery shop care homes that did not have vacancies but did have a waiting list as we felt this could bias their response to a query from a member of the public. This is consistent with the approach taken in 2005 (not to sample homes without vacancies and with a waiting list).

B.14 The mystery shopping exercise was intended to appear as an authentic enquiry from a member of the public regarding the provision of care in the home in question. It was undertaken by Swift Research and involved telephone enquiries with care homes on the basis of two different scenarios:

- interviewers calling care homes on behalf of a relative to enquire about an Authority-funded care home place, and
- interviewers calling care homes on behalf of a relative to enquire about a self-funded care home place.

B.15 In addition, a small number of calls were made based on a scenario that suggested the caller was enquiring on their own behalf as a prospective care home resident. This is consistent with the approach taken in 2005.

B.16 Under each scenario, the callers used a script and a checklist to allow for an open and genuine conversation but, at the same time, to ensure that the callers asked the care homes for the same type of information. The information contained within the script and checklist was designed to mirror as much as possible the questions and approach used in the original OFT mystery shopping exercise in 2005 to see whether the caller could gather clear and comprehensive information easily on care homes fees and charges, services/facilities and complaints.

B.17 At first, care homes were not prompted in order to ascertain whether they volunteer the required information – if they did not, prompts were then used.

B.18 In addition, literature (such as example contracts, brochures and statements of terms and conditions) were requested by the Swift callers and the presentation of results includes an initial assessment of the clarity and completeness of those materials.
Survey of local authorities

B.19 An electronic survey of contact points in local government authorities (and Health Trusts in Northern Ireland) was undertaken. The relevant contact points included Directors of Adult, Social and Community Care (and authorities holding similar other designations) across the UK whose remit covered care homes for older people within the jurisdiction of their offices. Representatives of the following organisations provided contact details for these authorities, either through their websites or when contacted separately:

- Wales: The Care and Social Services Inspectorate (CSSIW – http://wales.gov.uk/cssiwsubsite/newcssiw/?lang=en) and

B.20 In total, the survey was sent to 213 local authority and Health Trust (hereafter referred to as 'local authorities' or 'authorities') contact points. The response rate differed according to individual questions (as some authorities did not answer certain questions) but ranged between 52 and 62 respondents.

B.21 The survey questions drew upon the questions used in the original OFT 2005 market study and covered the following broad areas: consumer choice and switching; information provision; baseline rates; top-ups; support for self-funded residents; contracts; complaints; competitive neutrality and regulatory burden; direct service provision; and views on the impact of the OFT report.

B.22 Initial contact was made via an introductory letter from the OFT’s Chief Economist, after which GHK staff followed up via email.
B.23 GHK designed, developed and ran the survey using interactive PDF software. It was this PDF survey that GHK staff circulated to local authorities via email.
C RESEARCH TOOLS

C.1 This section sets out the questionnaires and other tools we used for our primary research.

Consumer focus groups & consumer interviews topic guide

Introduction

[Introduce yourself and your colleague and the study. You are a researcher from GHK – which is completely independent – and we have been asked to find out what people think of their care home for the Office of Fair Trading.]

'While I will ask for your name and age, if this is OK, this information will remain confidential and will not be fed back to [your care home managers] or the Office of Fair Trading. None of your comments today will be attributed to you, nor will your care home be identified – all comments will be anonymous.'

[Outline the interview – that you will start with some basic questions about them, then ask them to think about the decisions they made when they moved into their care home, the standard of service you feel you have received and whether you have thought about changing home.]

'If you have any questions, at any time, or if you would like to stop the interview/Focus Group, please don’t hesitate to ask.'

Choosing a home

Q1 Did anyone help you to make a decision about moving into this care home? Who was that? [PROMPTS: family, friends, GPs (or other health/social care professional)]

Q2 Was this home your first choice? If not, why could you not move into your first choice of home?

Q3 What attracted you to this home more than other homes? [PROMPTS: atmosphere, price, friends/family, location (close to where previously lived or close to family), quality rating]
Q4 Did you have options available to you in terms of a choice/range of care homes from which to choose? How would you describe the choice of homes available to you?

Q5 Did you have enough time to plan your move into this care home?

Information provision

Q6 Thinking back to how you found out about care homes, were you and/or your family given any guidance and help in choosing a care home? By whom?

Q7 Which of these do you remember seeing? [READ OUT]

- Age UK: fact sheets/booklets/leaflets/website
- Counsel and Care: fact sheets/booklets/leaflets/website
- Elderly Accommodation Counsel: Database of Care Homes
- Leaflets or directories of care homes from Authority/Local Trust
- Websites or help lines
- Inspection report on the care home
- Any other verbal or written information (brochure or contract)?

Q8 Did any of these information sources play a significant role in helping you to make your decision about a care home? If so, which ones and how?

Q9 Did any of these information sources help to provide you with information on care home fees so that you could compare fees across different care homes? If so, which ones?

Q10 Did any of these information sources help you to feel more confident about your choice of care home? If so, which ones and why?

Q11 Can you recall how long it took from the time it was decided that you would be moving into a care home to the point at which you actually moved into this care home? [INTERVIEWER: try to differentiate responses by funding type – local authority or self-funded – and by length of tenure – recent arrivals or longer-term residents]

Q12 Can you think of anything that would have saved you time in making your decision about moving into this care home? And how much time do you think this would have saved you? [PROMPTS: one-stop-shop, inspection reports, LA care home directories]

Q13 How would you value the time that you would have saved – specifically, hypothetically speaking, would you have been willing to pay to have saved that time in searching for a care home and, if so, how much would you have paid?

Contracts

Q14 When you first moved in did you/relative/friend sign an agreement or any type of formal contract with the home?

Q15 Do you have a copy of a contract?

Q16 Is it clear and does it make sense? [INTERVIEWER: Try to ask question of both residents and their representatives as what might be 'clear' to one may not be to the other]

Price transparency

[The questions in this section are 'closed' so researchers will have to be prepared to prompt interviewees to give full answers.]

Q17 Among those of you who have any part of your fees paid as either a third party contribution or top up, how did you find out about this contribution before you moved in?

Q18 Do you pay this top up direct to the home or to the Authority?

Q19 And thinking back to when you were told about the fees here, how did you find out what they would be?
Q20 And did the fees turn out to be more, less or the same as you were told they would be? [PROMPT: what about any additional extras that you have had to pay but may not have been expecting?]

Complaints

Q21 Have you ever been given any guidance as to how to complain and, if so, what kind of guidance was it (verbal, written) and who provided it to you?

Q22 Did you think that this process for complaining was clear and straightforward?

Q23 And were you told how complaints are dealt with in the home and what response to expect?

Choice & switching

Q24 Is this the first care home you have lived in or have you moved here from another home? Why did you move here?

Q25 How likely is it that you might consider moving at some time in the future?

Q26 If not likely, why do you say that?

Q27 If likely ask: if you were to consider moving, would you yourself be able to find another home, or would you seek help from a relative or friend?

Q28 If likely ask: And do you think it would be easier or harder to find a new home to move to compared to finding this home in the first place? Why do you say that?

Overall satisfaction

Q29 Overall, how satisfied would you say you are with this home on a scale of 1 to 10 (10 being most satisfied)?

Q30 Why did you give that score for your overall satisfaction?

Q31 Would you recommend this home to a friend?
Q32 If there was anything you could change about living in this care home, what would it be?

Care homes survey questionnaire

Introduction

'Good Morning/Afternoon/Evening

INTERVIEWER NOTE This might be the 'care home manager'

'Are you the most appropriate person to talk to about this?’

No – not the right person 2 ASK TO SPEAK TO THE CORRECT PERSON

ARRANGE TO CALL BACK IF NECESSARY

'I would like to stress that this is not a sales call.

Swift Research is a market research company and we have been commissioned to carry out a piece of research on behalf of the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) and the economic consultancy GHK. The OFT published a report into the care homes market in 2005 and it is now assessing what impact that report has had.

We are gathering views from care home providers in relation to a number of issues including your experience with Local Authorities, your residents, your fees and the information you provide to prospective residents.

Your care home is among a number that we have selected at random to participate in our research and we hope that you will be willing to participate in a short telephone interview. The interview will take around 20 minutes depending what you have to say to me. Is now a convenient time to talk?
We would like to take this opportunity to assure you that our work is not part of an inspection of care homes, and that all responses will be treated in complete confidence. No reference will be made to individuals or specific homes in the findings. All comments and information will be published by the OFT in due course. Participation is voluntary - you are under no obligation to take part.

Some calls may be recorded for quality control and training purposes.

If required we can email a covering letter from the Office of Fair Trading which provides further background on the evaluation study they are undertaking and how our research supports it.

Mystery shopping exercise script

Introduction

'Good morning/good afternoon/hello. I am ringing about my mother' (or father if preferred).

'She has recently had a spell in hospital' (if asked, the reason for the stay was a fractured hip) 'but although she has been discharged and is at home, she is struggling. The social services have made an assessment and say she needs residential care.'

General

'It has been a really difficult decision for her and for the family too. She has lived at the same address for years. It will be a great wrench to have to leave. She lives in' [randomly selected location for purposes of survey], 'and wants to stay in that area, but I live in' [actual location for researcher].

Mental and physical health

'She is rather frail and is sometimes a bit wobbly and has some difficulty moving about due to arthritis. She just about copes with dressing and undressing herself but finds some buttons and zips beyond her.

She is still really quite good mentally, sometimes talks about what's in the news and on the telly, that sort of thing, although she does tend to be quite forgetful. That only really matters because she has tablets for diabetes and can forget to take them, for that matter she sometimes forgets what she has eaten which doesn’t help if she has had a lot of sweet things.’

Location

'She has always lived in' [name of relevant location] 'and wants to stay near friends and other relatives'. [If the researcher is rather remote from the resident] 'I would prefer her to be closer to me but I won’t go against her wishes if at all possible.'

Funding scenario 1 – self funded

'I have read a couple of fact sheets, and I think that in due course mum will be paying for her own care, as she is a homeowner. I suppose that at the moment I need to know what are your normal fees and do you have any vacancies?

One difficulty is that mum doesn't have any savings to speak of. I think she can get short-term help, but I'm worried about what will happen if it takes a while to sell the house.

Could you advise me about that?

If she was getting that help for a few weeks would it make any difference to the standards – you know the sort of level of care, and would the fees continue at the same level or change, once she was past that stage and paying for herself?'

Funding scenario 2 – publicly funded

'I have read a couple of fact sheets, and I think that mum/dad will be funded by social services. She does not own her home and doesn’t have any savings to speak of.

It seems that she could still select a home of our own choosing but the fees would have to be no more than the Authority will meet. I haven’t yet found out how much that is but are you normally able to accept Authority funded residents? And if so do you have any current vacancies?’
[As a possible mechanism for checking on arrangements for homes only accepting Authority funded residents with top ups from third parties, consider the following:]

'Are your normal fees a lot higher? We thought we might have to find a little extra money to pay for a few luxuries, but hadn't really thought about paying anything directly towards the actual cost of care.

I am not sure if we could meet the difference but it seems worth finding out more. Would it be clear exactly how much we were paying and who was paying what? Would we have to make any payment to your home or direct to the Authority.'

Main enquiry about general information

'As you can imagine we are trying to see what choices are open to us, and are ringing one or two homes in the area to find out what they offer. Naturally we want to know as much as we can before making any decision.

Really it amounts to getting accurate idea of fees and what they cover, and what can be expected in return. Rather than run through a long list of questions, is there a brochure or something similar that you could send me to explain all about your home?'

[If the home offers to provide any written material, consider using the following comments to see a copy of the relevant contract.]

'Would mum have to sign a contract? Would it be possible to include a copy of an example contract so we can talk to her about it and explain what it’s all about?'

[If previous discussion has covered the possibility of paying top up fees consider using the following comments.]

'In any material you send could you be very clear about anything we would have to pay on top of the Authority funding? Mum likes to see a chiropodist regularly – mainly because of her diabetes – would that be an extra?’

Local authority & health trust survey questionnaire

The purpose of this data inquiry

GHK Consulting Ltd has been commissioned by the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) to complete an independent evaluation of the impact of the OFT’s 2005 market study into care homes for older people.

As part of our evaluation, we are circulating a short questionnaire to all local authorities and health & social care trusts about your work in the care homes sector which will provide vital information for establishing the policies and practices of local authorities with respect to the commissioning and/or delivery of care home services. The questionnaire should take approximately 25 minutes to complete.

Your response to this questionnaire will be treated in complete confidence. No reference will be made to individuals or specific local authorities / trusts in the findings. All comments and information will be collated with other comparable material and fed into the production of a report that will be published by the OFT in due course. We would also like to make clear that this is totally voluntary and you are under no obligation to take part in this research.

To fill in the survey please use this interactive Adobe Acrobat document. You can save a partially completed survey and circulate via email if inputs from more than one person are needed. You can enter as much text as is necessary for each descriptive response.

When you have finished, please click the ‘submit’ icon at the top right of the page. If you subsequently want to make changes then please resubmit the entire form.
